Cole Dixon joined Schwebel, Goetz & Sieben in 2013 and brings with him experience and compassion when helping those who have suffered injuries. He worked as a law clerk while he obtained his Juris Doctor in 2007 from the University of South Dakota Law School. Cole received his undergraduate degree in Political Science from Minnesota State University.

Since 2008, Cole has dedicated his practice to solely representing individuals who were injured due to no fault of their own. He recently made a significant recovery for a nine year old girl who tragically lost both parents in a motorcycle accident. Handling cases like this is why Cole looks at his job as a true honor and a privilege by assisting those in need following a traumatic and life altering accident.

Cole's experience includes all aspects of personal injury litigation including car and truck collisions, motorcycle crashes and general liability cases. He is licensed to practice law in Minnesota and Iowa.
